

Press Release

The German packaging companies tbs-pack and alpha-pack impress with sustainable packaging solutions

Erftstadt, September 19, 2023 - The Erftstadt packaging companies tbs-pack GmbH and alpha-pack Group rely on technical innovation and are expanding their sustainable packaging portfolio. With success: their packaging films have already received an award from the environmental service provider interseroh.

No other topic has dominated the packaging industry in recent years as much as the topic of sustainability. As packaging companies, the companies tbs-pack GmbH and alpha-pack Group from Erftstadt have therefore set themselves the goal of taking responsibility.

“In our group of companies, we produce sustainable machines and materials in order to make our contribution to making the world of packaging a little bit better,” says Managing Director Thomas Stumpp.

Packaging innovations from the Rhein-Erft district to reduce plastic waste

For more than 15 years, tbs-pack GmbH has been the contact in the Rhine-Erft region when it comes to pioneering and innovative packaging solutions. In order to reduce packaging waste, the company tbs-pack relies on extra-thin, yet tear-resistant packaging films.

For example, with their eco-stretch film, which is used in logistics to secure pallets for shipping. In order to reduce the film thickness, the stretch films go through a specially developed process in which a reduction in material use of up to 50% can be achieved. Managing director Stumpp explains: “For us, less is more – especially when it comes to stretch film. By reducing the amount of film material required, we not only ensure less environmental impact. Because less material has to be used, we also achieve enormous price savings in our customers’ product packaging.”

Sustainable packaging films recognized as “very recyclable”.

In addition, tbs-pack recently launched the “Castelli Greenline”. The Greenline is a portfolio of sustainable packaging materials made from paper, renewable raw materials or recyclates that can be particularly well recycled or biodegraded.

“Thanks to their excellent recycling properties, our Castelli shrink films have already received the very recyclable award from the environmental service provider interseroh. We are very pleased about this award and the recognition of our sustainability efforts,” says marketing manager Rita Zuri.

Resource-saving packaging machines for more process optimization

But resources cannot only be saved on the material side. Using the right machine can also lead to less material usage, less energy consumption and less CO2 emissions. For this reason, the alpha-pack Group's automatic packaging machines are designed to be energy-saving, fail-safe and long-lasting. Managing director Thomas Stumpp emphasizes: “The speed, reliability and longevity of our machines not only ensure better process optimization and budget savings because fewer new purchases have to be made. Because our machines are particularly energy efficient, they also protect the environment.”

For those interested, the group offers a free sustainability check, in which the packaging solutions used to date are analyzed and then optimization suggestions are made with regard to resource consumption, the CO2 footprint and the costs of the packaging solutions.

About tbs-pack GmbH

The company tbs-pack GmbH was founded in 2008 and, thanks to its many years of experience in the market, is one of the pioneers in the Rhein-Erft district when it comes to innovative and future-oriented packaging machines and materials. Through the merger with the Alpha-Pack Group, which is unique in the industry, the companies offer their customers holistic system solutions from the manufacturer - completely from a single source without intermediaries.

The main location of tbs-pack GmbH is in the business park in Erftstadt-Lechenich, where work is almost climate-neutral thanks to the 280 kilowatt peak (kWp) photovoltaic system.

www.tbs-pack.de

Press contact details:

tbs-pack GmbH

Otto-Hahn-Allee 1, 50374 Erftstadt

Rita Zuri, Head of Marketing

E-Mail: r.zuri@tbs-pack.de | Phone: +49 2235 470 48 941