The Topponcino: The Montessori Approach to Gently Welcome Baby from Birth

Inspired by Maria Montessori's educational philosophy, the Topponcino has become an essential item for gently supporting a newborn's early days with tenderness, safety, and comfort.

Maria Montessori emphasized the importance of handling newborns with the utmost gentleness while providing a sense of security and proper head support during the first months of life. The Topponcino meets these needs perfectly.

A Soothing Cocoon from the Very First Moments

The Topponcino is a small, oval-shaped, soft and flexible mattress designed to support baby during their first movements and transitions. It gently hugs the baby's body while providing essential support for the head and back. As a transitional support, it allows baby to fall asleep in your arms and be laid down in their bed without any sensory disruption—no change in temperature, texture, or scent. It's also ideal during breastfeeding, diaper changes, or baby's first interactions with loved ones.

The Benefits of the Topponcino

- Retains body warmth, offering reassuring thermal comfort.
- Absorbs familiar scents (mother, home), creating a soothing and secure environment.
- Provides gentle body support, evoking the snugness of the womb and reinforcing a sense of safety.
- Facilitates handling, making it easier to lay baby down without waking them.
- Provides reassurance to caregivers, especially those less confident handling newborns.

A Safe and Practical Product for Parents

- Organic cotton cover, gentle on baby's sensitive skin.
- Soft polyester filling, with a padded bolster around the head for added support.
- Removable cover for easy washing and optimal hygiene.

Pro tip: Sleep with your Topponcino a few days before baby's arrival so it absorbs your scent. Your newborn will find comfort in this familiar smell from the very beginning.
